What is the FARE Patient Registry?

The FARE (Food Allergy Research & Education) Patient Registry is a secure database of health information that allows food-allergic individuals and their caregivers to quickly, conveniently and privately share their food allergy experiences through simple online surveys to advance food allergy research. The Registry helps researchers better understand food allergy and its impact, reveals opportunities to improve the care food allergy patients receive, and powers the search for new ways to diagnose, treat and, ultimately, cure this life-changing disease. Insights from the Registry are also used to support FARE's education and advocacy initiatives, serving more than 32 million Americans with potentially life-threatening food allergies.

Who can join?

You are eligible to join the Registry if you or your child/dependent has a physician-diagnosed food allergy and can provide informed medical consent (permission). If you are under 18, you will need a parent or guardian to provide consent.

How will my information be kept private?

The FARE Patient Registry is firmly committed to protecting your personal information. Information is stored and maintained in a secure, password-protected database with monitored access. Your personal information is not shared.
