

write.as for libraries

Write.as is a flexible writing platform for libraries. Share writing within your critique groups, give patrons an outlet for their stories, or engage your community with monthly writing prompts. Write.as gives you and your patrons an easy way to share stories online.

A simple writing tool

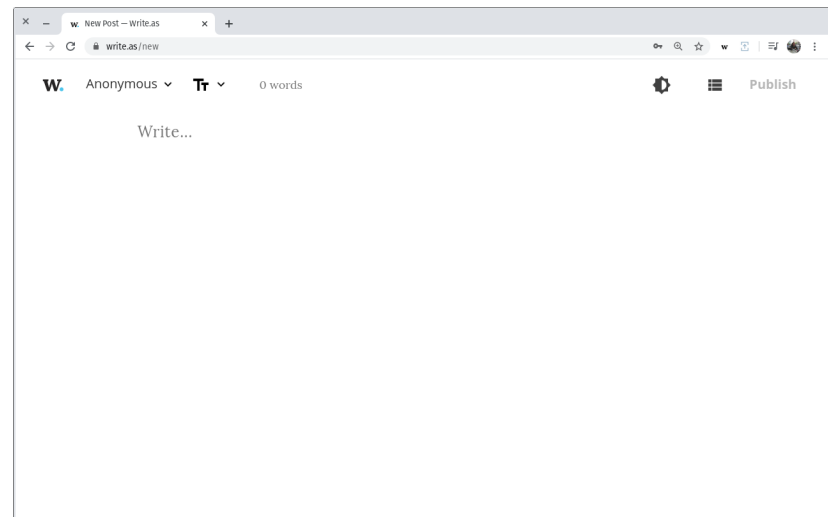

Give patrons a place to write without any clutter or distractions. Write.as is built for plain text instead of elaborate formatting, making it easy to use and learn in no time.

Try the editor at write.as/new

Publish and share

Write.as supports a variety of publishing options, from one-off “anonymous” articles you can share via secret links, to fully-functional blogs. Pair Write.as with Zoom or Slack to support your writing group, or have your patrons publish to their own blog.

View a sample blog at write.as/jocowrites

The distraction-free Write.as editor.

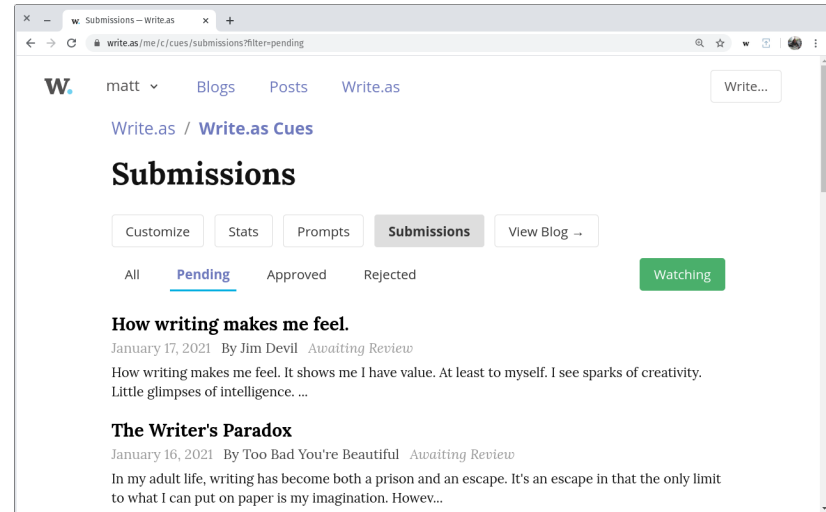

Gather writing submissions

Publish writing prompts and gather submissions for your blog, contest, or conference. Like on Write.as, patrons enjoy an easy submission process that doesn't require any account creation.

Try submitting a response at submit.as/cues

Human support and collaboration

From the start, our team will intimately learn about the problems you're trying to solve, and draw on our wide expertise to give you the best combination of tools for the job. Once you're set up, we'll regularly make sure you and your patrons have the support and resources needed to be successful with our tools. If it ever turns out that we can improve our products based on your feedback, we'll make those changes, too. We don't see customers merely as users, but collaborators. We're a small business that prides ourselves on the human attention we can give you.

Manage submissions with Submit.as

Ready to learn more?

Contact us at hello@write.as to discuss your project and request a demo!

hello@write.as write.as

@writeas__