Calming Cuddle Blanket

Latex-Free

Important Reasons For Sensory Support

- Sensory input helps to support physiological stability. Consistent and appropriate tactile pressure on the baby can provide positive experiences in the skin receptors.
- Sensory support assists neuromuscular development. Appropriate pressure can assist with maintaining the preferred flexion position.
- Sensory input assists with self-soothing.
- Sensory input assists with behavioral organization, because appropriate pressure is calming.
- Sensory input supports containment, which influences sleep. Sleep supports weight gain. Weight gain supports more energy for nipple feeding.

Knit blanket is machine washable and can be reused after washing, per unit protocol on other patients. Replace after 3 months of continual use.

The Calming Cuddle Blanket is part of therapeutic positioning and when used with other Small Beginnings' products, such as the Diana Bed Buddy, Bed Buddy, or a simple swaddle, the clinician is promoting improved rest and growth. If the baby feels more comfortable and contained, they are more likely to be calm, sleep sounder, and gain more weight, which could lead to an earlier discharge.

Available in wipeable, reusable material, knit, fleece or disposable fitted covers

Diana Bed Buddy

The Diana Bed Buddy Covers come in 3 very soft fabrics; fleece, knit and disposable. The fleece and knit can be machine washed and dried.

Note: All have Cuffed-End for easy closing.

4 Sizes:

33 inch
39 inch
47 inch
63 inch

Reusable Bead-Bag

The Diana Bed Buddy is the easiest positioning device to use. It quickly surrounds and interfaces with infant, providing a soft, rebounding surface. Developed at Princess Diana Hospital in the UK to keep baby's legs from extending over the Bed Buddy. It facilitates a NIDCAP recommended leg-tuck.

Notice the feet over the top - The Diana prevents this from occurring.

Bebeonkers

The Problem:

All one hole suction devices grab tissue

Devices altered to facilitate the removal of oral secretions or designed ineffectively for tenacious secretions

These devices were removed from hospitals around the country as Nurses make whatever they can to suction more effectively

All have a single-hole at distal end.

Bebeonkers I

The Solution:

- Patented
- 2 or more holes
- Bebeonkers have 3
- Does not grab tissue
- No trauma
- No harm

There has never been an effective device for suctioning intubated or newborn infants. Doctors, nurses and therapists have been using, or creating inferior one-hole devices. This endangers infants and makes hospitals and medical professional liable if an infant is injured. "BEBEONKERS" is the right device!!! Two or more holes, flexible and a tapered inner wall does the job quickly without damaging tissue.

Bebeonkers I (16-1) was designed with a bulb-tip to form a seal on the outer nares to facilitate quick removal of secretions, both nasally and orally, and still retain a three-hole configuration for safe oral care without hurting baby.

Flexible & Soft

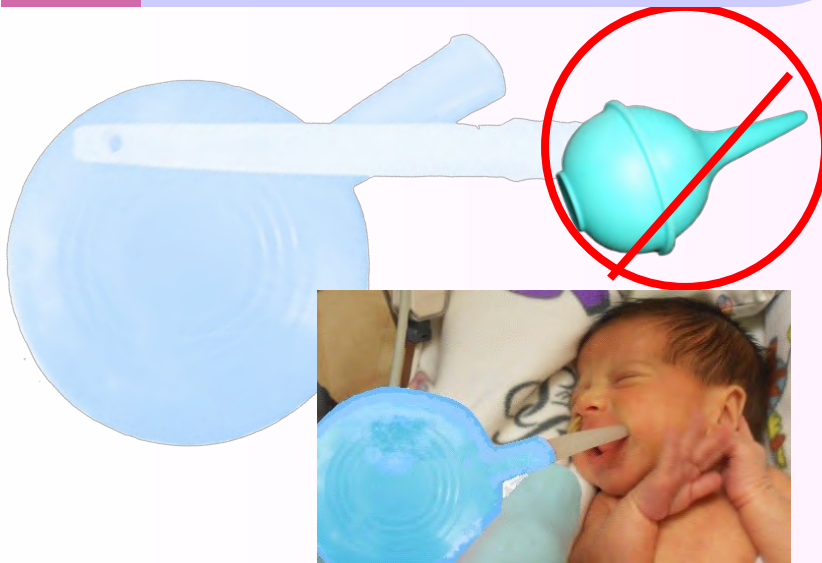

Bebeonkers II ( 16-2 ), our original patented design, is an oral/nasal suction device that does not grab tissue and effectively removes the most tenacious secretions quickly and without injury. Now available: 16-0 Webeonkers for the ultra-preemie infant. Like the 16-2 but smaller. Packaged six per bag.

Bebe-Ball & Bebe Keeper Kover

Bebe-Ball

- Bulb suction adaptor for Bebeonkers 16-0, 16-1 and 16-2
- Helps prevent damage that occurs if one-hole device accidentally touches the sensitive mucosa of a newborn or preemie
- Dispose of tip every 12 to 24 hours and Bebe-Ball every 48 hours or per hospital policy to prevent infection as recommended
- Use on transports or when power is unavailable and STAT suctioning is required
- Standard bulb syringe has one hole and is inappropriate because it can grab and tear tender tissue too

Cuddle Buns

What makes our diapers so special?

The answer ...
The narrow crotch.
Our pads are figure-eight in shape. This helps keep the baby positioned to prevent abduction.

*Reference article:
NYU Child Study Center
Premature Infants: A Later Look
"Correctly sized diapers is one such simple invention. For example, it was found that preemies who are put in diapers that are too large must keep their legs spread apart in order to accommodate the extra fabric. This resulted in incorrect turn-out of the hips and thus later, motor problems."

Cuddle Buns also have NO exposed plastic that can stick to baby's sensitive skin, and they have hook & loop attachments instead of tape.

Beary Small Bili-Buns

Phototherapy Diapers

The Beary Small Economical Diapers; 22A, 22B, 22C are designed with a narrow crotch and made with SAP for those situations where extra absorbency is required. Made with hook and loop attachments and newly improved, all white opaque outer layer and no tape to stick to sensitive skin.
And now our Beary Small Diapers are permeable by photo therapy lights.
