American Academy of Pediatrics

DEDICATED TO THE HEALTH OF ALL CHILDREN®

Now more than ever, when parents and families have questions—about vaccines, an elevated fever, a new cough—you are a trusted voice on the other end of the line. From the common to the complex, and the everyday to the once in a lifetime, you are prepared to deliver for the families and children in your care.

Look for these new resources that will ensure you are covered through it all.

Our new digital resource First 1,000 Days Knowledge Center (page 3), supported by Reckitt Mead Johnson Nutrition, allows pediatricians and clinicians to stay abreast of key topics, new policies, and guidelines for achieving optimal child health outcomes during the critical first 1,000 days of a child's life.

Our lineup of 2023 coding products (pages 8–9) includes new reference materials and popular packages that will ensure you are up to date with the latest changes and have the tools to optimize your coding and maximize your payment.

PREP® Self-Assessment products (pages 32–33) provide a way to test yourself or to review core concepts in general pediatrics and 15 areas of specialty care. Each self-assessment provides case-based questions, critiques, and references for further study written by topic experts with online features to enhance your studies. 2023 subscriptions are now available for preorder with access beginning in January.

The fully revised and updated new edition of My Child Is Sick! Expert Advice for Managing Common Illnesses and Injuries (page 38) by Barton D. Schmitt, MD, FAAP, will help anxious moms and dads decide when they can safely treat their child at home, when they need to call you, and when they need to head to the emergency department. And Congrats—You're Having a Teen! Strengthen Your Family and Raise a Good Person (page 39) offers all the positive guidance of adolescent expert Kenneth R. Ginsburg, MD, MS Ed, FAAP, in one enormously helpful and uplifting volume.

For the many ways you show up—to vaccinate children, address their mental health crisis, and advocate and care for their health and safety—we are here to support you, through it all.

Pediatric Telehealth Best Practices

New!

Use of telehealth was already on the rise before the COVID-19 public health emergency, but the pandemic brought it to the forefront of medical care. With its increased use came a lot of questions—"How can I assist pediatric patients with limited access to technology?" "Do this patient's symptoms make them a good candidate for telehealth?" "How do I code this visit?" This resource answers those questions and seeks to help pediatric providers develop efficient, effective telehealth services within their own practices.

Pediatric Telehealth Best Practices goes beyond AAP policy to offer straightforward strategies for establishing and sustaining a successful telehealth program. Its contents are curated from AAP published content, including guidance from the Section on Telehealth Care as well as journals and books.

You-ology

A Puberty Guide for Every Body

Melisa Holmes, MD, FACOG; Trish Hutchison, MD, FAAP; and Kathryn Lowe, MD, FAAP

What if learning about changing bodies wasn't secretive or shameful? And what if it could even be inclusive, fun, and, well, kind of adorable? A new kind of puberty guide, You-ology embraces an inclusive approach that normalizes puberty for all kids. Traditional puberty education only contributes to a sense of isolation and often does not include all kids' experience of puberty and leaves kids with questions about how puberty will affect their friends and classmates. For curious kids and parents looking to talk about puberty in an inclusive way, You-ology offers fact-based, age-appropriate, and body-positive information about the physical, social, and emotional changes ahead for all kids.
